ORDERS OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL.

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 22, 1909.

ORDER No. 2455.

Amend Section 14 of the Postal Laws and Regulations by adding the following paragraph:

4. In accounts and claims relating to the postal revenues and expenditure therefrom any affidavit required by the regulations and not required by statute may be waived when it is shown to the satisfaction of the Postmaster General and Auditor for the Post Office Department that the officer or claimant is located at a distance from any person authorized to take acknowledgments, or that for good and sufficient reason it is impracticable to furnish the affidavit.

Matter Found in Ordinary Mail-Drops Not to be Registered Unless Clearly Intended for Registration.

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 22, 1909.

ORDER No. 2456.

Section 809, Postal Laws and Regulations, is hereby amended to read as follows:

SEC. 809. Such letters and parcels found in the post office drops for ordinary mail as are marked "Registered," or are otherwise marked so as to show beyond doubt that they are intended to be registered, provided they have sufficient postage stamps affixed, bear the name and address of the sender, and are in all other respects acceptable for registration, should be taken from the ordinary mail at the office of origin and registered. The employee who registers a letter or parcel of the foregoing description will give a receipt to the mailing branch of the office upon taking custody of the article, and will also mail in an official envelope, to the address of the sender, a registration receipt in the usual form, with a notice cautioning him against mailing matter for registration in the ordinary mail-drops.

2. If an article has been marked "Registered" but, because it does not fulfill all requirements for registration, is not registered, the words, "Not in the registered mail," should be written or stamped on the envelope or wrapper in order to prevent possible detention or confusion in its treatment in transit or at the office of delivery. See Sec. 871, paragraph 6, relative to marking registered matter found in mail-drops after it has been delivered.

3. Whenever it appears that any sender, after due notice, continues to use the post office drops for articles intended for registration, and fails to present such matter in the prescribed manner, the letters and parcels so irregularly deposited will be indorsed "Not in the registered mail," and dispatched with the ordinary mail in which it was deliberately placed by the sender. The action taken will be reported to the Third Assistant Postmaster General.

ORDERS OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL.

Supposed Liable-To-Customs Duty Mail Originating on Board United States Naval Vessels.

OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 23, 1909.

ORDER No. 2453.

To Those Concerned:

Complaint has been made by the Treasury Department that mail originating on board United States naval vessels and containing matter supposed to be liable to United States customs duty, frequently reaches the addressees without previously having been submitted to a customs official.

Navy mail clerks and postmasters are therefore enjoined to strictly observe the following instructions concerning the treatment of such mail, both ordinary and registered:

Navy mail clerks will indorse all matter mailed on board United States naval vessels, which they have reason to believe may possibly contain matter subject to United States customs duty, with the words, "Supposed liable to customs duty," before dispatching such mail.

Unsealed pieces, registered and unregistered, received from United States naval vessels and marked "Supposed liable to customs duty," will be treated as follows:

Unsealed articles, both registered and ordinary (except registered articles inclosed in registered package envelopes) will be examined by customs officials at the original exchange office of receipt.

If unsealed registered and unregistered pieces are accompanied by mail entries when received at the final office of delivery, showing that customs duty has been assessed on their contents prior to their receipt at the post office of delivery, they will be delivered to the addressees upon payment of the duty assessed. Such pieces will also be delivered to the addressees without submission to a customs official if they are indorsed to indicate that they have previously been examined by a customs officer and passed free of duty.

If the pieces have not been appraised by a customs official, they will be submitted to the customs officer, located in the city of delivery, for appraisement, if there be one. If there is no customs officer in that city, the pieces will be forwarded, under official registration, to the postmaster at the city where the nearest customs officer is located, for submission to such official. If the contents of the pieces are found to be dutiable, the customs official will issue mail entries and return the pieces, with the entries, through the postmaster at the city in which the customs officer is located, to the postmaster at the post office of delivery, who will collect the customs charges and transmit them, with the mail entries, by registered mail, to the customs officer who issued the entries.

Sealed parcels, registered and unregistered, received from United States naval vessels and marked "Supposed liable to customs duty" will be treated as follows:

The addressees will be notified to appear and open the pieces in the presence of a customs officer or, if there be none in the city, in the presence of the postmaster or his authorized representative.

The pieces opened, the addressee will be required to at once hand the same to the customs officer, if there be one, for examination, and, if dutiable, the issuance of a mail entry and the collection of proper charges, after which the pieces will be delivered to the addressees. Sealed registered pieces must not be opened by the addressees or their authorized representatives until proper receipt therefor has been given.

If there is no customs officer in the city in which the post office of delivery is located, the sealed pieces, after being opened by the addressees or their authorized representatives, will be forwarded, under official registration, to the postmaster at the city where the nearest customs officer is located for submission to such official. If the contents of the pieces are found to be dutiable, the customs official will issue mail entries and return the pieces, with the entries, through the postmaster at the city in which the customs officer is located, to the postmaster at the post office of delivery, who will collect the customs charges and transmit them, with the mail entries, by registered mail, to the customs official who issued the entries.

Postmasters will accord the same treatment to any ordinary or registered pieces originating on board United States naval vessels which they have reason to believe may contain matter subject to United States customs duty, even though through inadvertence the navy mail clerks may have failed to indorse the matter "Supposed liable to customs duty." (See paragraphs 8, 11, 12, 13, 14, 23, 24 and 35 of the Joint Regulations governing the treatment of dutiable and supposed dutiable articles received in the mails from foreign countries.)

The list of cities at which customs officials are located will be found on pages 80 and 81 of the July, 1909, Official Postal Guide.

Postmaster General.

By virtue of the authority conferred by Article XII of the Parcel-Post Convention between the United States and Austria, Article IX of that Convention has been modified by agreement this Department and the Postal Administration of Austria, so as to provide that if a parcel cannot be delivered to or is refused by the addressee, the sender shall be consulted respecting its disposal, provided that if the sender of the parcel is not heard from within two months from the date of the inquiry addressed to him, the parcel shall be treated as abandoned.
